

Elf Frank Myrrh: Happy Halloween greetings from the North Pole news desk, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole radio news. The North Pole Halloween party is soon to be held and we've got our man in the mask there right now, Elf Crash Murphy, to tell us what is happening. Crash, does the Halloween party feel a bit different this year?

Elf Crash Murphy: It does, Frank, it feels much younger. We have a lot more of the children of our elf families here this year, including some of the cutest little kids you can imagine, all in clever costumes and playing it up for the television cameras.

Elf Frank: TV cameras? At the Halloween party? Since when does North Pole TV news report from the Halloween Party?

Elf Crash: They're not reporting, Frank, they're volunteering. They brought their lights, cameras and reporters to broadcast the kids in costume so that those who have parents or older siblings working tonight can see them at the party.

Elf Frank: That's really cool, Crash. I really love the selfless nature of Halloween this year. We have this big problem we're trying to solve in Santa's workshop and everyone is just forgetting about themselves to get it fixed. Look at everything being done, little things like the TV guys donating their time and expertise so the working elves can be connected to the elves at the party. That's a billion times of awesome right there.

Elf Crash: It really us and are the kids really hamming it up, Frank. Of course it's all being recorded and they are excited to see themselves on TV, especially when they know people they love are seeing it too as they work.

Elf Frank: I gotta ask, given the nature of these party events, do you think they annual Halloween party food fight will happen this year?

Elf Crash: Not a chance, Frank. Mrs. Claus already said we're not doing it this year. The focus is squarely on the children and while they all know about it Mrs. Claus just doesn't think its necessary given everything going on. We're going to focus on costumes and games tonight at the party – and of course, putting it all on TV.

Elf Frank: Sounds like a great time, Crash. I hope you tell us tomorrow how it all turned out. From the North Pole, where we don't have to throw twinkies to have a good time on Halloween, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com on the Kringle Radio Network.
