

Elf Frank Myrrh: Hello and Happy Thanksgiving from the North Pole, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole Radio News. Thanksgiving is a time of family and gathering for people all over the world today but many elves remain working, even at the North Pole. Joining us now from Santa's workshop with a live report is Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, how does it look there today?

Elf Crash Murphy: Normally all of Santa's workshop is closed on Thanksgiving but not this year, Frank. In fact, this place seems busier to me today than even a normal day. That could be because Mrs. Claus has sent a team from her kitchen to the cafeteria here with all the traditional Thanksgiving fixings to keep working elves here fed.

Elf Frank: How is the mood there, Crash?

Elf Crash: It's still Thanksgiving, Frank. Even though they are busy, they're smiling. Someone put a note up on the bulletin board that today was also bring your chicken to work day and some elves have actually done it, Frank. They set up a little chicken coop over by the lobby of the cafeteria where six or seven chickens are running around under a banner that says "Enjoy Turkey Day".

Elf Frank: Oh that's hilarious.

Elf Crash: Yes, a good sense of humor on a day like today helps make it all the more fun, Frank. I think folks here are going to remember this Thanksgiving for years to come.

Elf Frank: Thanks for that report, Crash. We'll talk to you later tonight for the Operation Merry Christmas ceremony. Let's check in now with Elf Westover for what trackers need to know today.

Elf Westover: Good morning trackers! There are 26 days until Santa's launch. Santa has finally arrived home. And safely. Tomorrow it will be the starting of the delivery phase of Operation Merry Christmas. Thank you Frank and all you trackers out there. This is Elf Westover wishing you a Merry Christmas and a happy Thanksgiving!

Elf Frank: Happy thanksgiving as well to you, Elf Westover, and all of our tracker elves out there who remain on the job today. From the North Pole, where we like our stuffing for dessert, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com the Kringle Radio Network.
