

Elf Frank Myrrh: Hello again from the North Pole News Desk, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole Radio News. Today, the 15th of November, Santa Claus has sent a message for all tracker elves to step up this Christmas to help. Joining us to discuss what Santa said and what trackers need to do is the International Director of Santa Trackers, Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, we're reporting on your troops today, you are the news. What is this special request from Santa all about?

Elf Crash Murphy: Frank, Santa has a lot of concerns about delivering this year and as you and I have talked in reporting on the crisis in Santa's workshop nobody really knows what Santa will be up against when he launches next month. So what he's doing here is putting us as tracker elves on our toes – to get us ready for anything.

Elf Frank: When you say that it tends to put worry in the minds of many believers, Crash. Like Santa is expecting for something really really bad to happen or to go wrong that might endanger Christmas this year.

Elf Crash: It's not Santa's intent to do that, or mine in sharing Santa's concerns. It's to get us ready to do what we might need to do in order to avert something bad from happening.

Elf Frank: What exactly is Santa having trackers do right now that is out of the ordinary?

Elf Crash: It's not that it's something new – its just something more, Frank. Santa wants more information and right now it's all about the public observance report from trackers. He wants them out and about and reporting on how people are behaving.

Elf Frank: Isn't that spying, Crash?

Elf Crash: No, it's not and Santa made sure I was clear about that in sending the message. It's just telling Santa what they see out there. Santa is concerned about how people are feeling. And not just about Christmas. It's a wellness check and we're going to do it a lot between now and when Santa launches.

Elf Frank: And why, Crash? What does Santa get out of this?

Elf Crash: Look, we're in the happiness business, Frank. Santa can't deliver happiness without knowing what people need in order to be happy. In a way, trackers are going to help Santa stuff his sack with happiness, if you think about it right. And with more of what trackers need to know today, here's Elf Westover with his report.

Elf Westover: Trackers around the world. There are now 38 days before Santa's launch. Operation Merry Christmas is in its pre-delivery phase right now. For the reindeer game situation, the reindeer Donner, Rudolph, Blitzen, Vixen, and Goldie are performing an emergency playoff today. This is Elf Westover signing off, wishing you a Merry Christmas, and remember, stay jolly!

Elf Frank: Thank you, Elf Westover and thank you, Elf Crash Murphy for that interesting information. It's good to know Santa's concerns. From the North Pole, when Santa stuffs my stocking with happiness every year, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com on the Kringle Radio Network.
