

Elf Frank Myrrh: Greetings from the North Pole News Desk, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole Radio News. Santa's workshop is facing an increasing load of challenges as the days until Santa's launch tick away. Joining us from the workshop with a live report is Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, the workshop reported some great news this week, don't tell me something has happened that will wash that good news away.

Elf Crash Murphy: No, Frank, the workshop has been on a roll and we've got nothing to take that away from them. But as the days pass until Santa's launch it is becoming painfully obvious to everyone here that there's likely no way they can be done before Santa launches. And that's starting to affect the morale among the elves.

Elf Frank: That's terrible news, Crash. Does Santa have a solution to all of this?

Elf Crash: He does, Frank. Santa says to keep doing our best, that things will work out. Just keep working, keep moving and between now and when he delivers anywhere on Christmas Eve, somehow things will be okay.

Elf Frank: I bet there are elves having a hard time with that.

Elf Crash: You bet your sweet bippy they're having a hard time with it. We've got elves who can read the Christmas tea leaves, Frank. They can hear the fat lady warming up. They can see what's gonna happen.

Elf Frank: So instead of shooting me a bunch of cliches, what can be done about it?

Elf Crash: Keep working. Do our best. Don't worry about what we can't control. Just keep plugging away at it. What's good for the goose is good for the gander.

Elf Frank: So, in other words, just a lot of talk. Thanks for nothing, Crash. From the North Pole news desk, where we think this workshop thing is the story of the year and we have no idea how it's going to finish, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com the Kringle Radio Network.
