

Elf Frank Myrrh: Hello once again from the North Pole news desk, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole Radio News with breaking news at this hour. A shocking report was filed at North Pole Flight Command suggesting that Santa does not have near the number of elves he will need tracking Santa for Santa this Christmas Eve. Here to discuss this with us from Flight Command is the International Director of Santa Trackers, Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, why did this report go to Flight Command and not to you first?

Elf Crash Murphy: Because technically I'm a sub-department of Flight Command, Frank. But that hardly matters right now.

Elf Frank: What does matter?

Elf Crash: What matter is that Santa is going to hop into that sleigh in about 21 days and we're concerned now we don't have the numbers we need to support him.

Elf Frank: Do you really believe the current that the current level of trackers you have are insufficient to meet the needs for Santa on Christmas Eve?

Elf Crash: If we don't recruit one more tracker this year, Frank, I'm confident we can will serve Santa well. The problem is the unknown. What if Santa has to extend his flight? What if that extension comes as early as Sector 2 or 3? What if Santa needs information to support more than one sleigh?

Elf Frank: Are you suggesting that there could be multiple sleighs used in Santa's efforts to deliver this year? How can Santa fly more than one sleigh?

Elf Crash: You're not thinking of the right problem, Frank. Let's not get into that yet. Let's just talk about that possibility. If there is more than one delivery sleigh up there, what are the tracking needs of supporting that?

Elf Frank: Well, they would be double, I guess.

Elf Crash: Bingo. And what if there are ten delivery sleighs? Or a hundred?

Elf Frank: Wow, Crash. Is that being considered?

Elf Crash: Maybe.

Elf Frank: Okay, so there's meat in this report to digest. We're anxious to hear Santa's thoughts on this topic and where it will lead tracking Santa for Santa this year. And here with today's report on what trackers need to know, here's Elf Westover.

Elf Westover: Hello Trackers! I hope you all had a very amazing Thanksgiving. Had a big Thanksgiving this year. Lots of turkey, mashed potatoes, and that good gravy. I want to thank Elf Shine for her services and covering me even during Thanksgiving and the weekend. Now on to our report. A serious hack attempt began on North Pole computers a few hours ago. North Pole security is on it. This is Elf Westover wishing you a Merry Christmas and remember stay jolly.

Elf Frank Myrrh: From the North Pole, where everything seems urgent this year with Operation Merry Christmas, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com on the Kringle Radio Network.
