

Elf Holly Berry: Greetings! I'm Elf Holly Berry reporting from the Special Assignment Desk for North Pole Radio News. There are just 12 days remaining until Santa's launch and the Workshop is still 21 days behind. 12 days have been improved upon since our last report but folks are really feeling it now as crunch time is upon us. Joining us from Santa's Workshop with a live report is Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, this appears to be a very important week in Operation Merry Christmas.

Elf Crash: It sure is Holly as this has always been a crucial week for just about every department. The Post Office and especially Wrapping are really under heavy pressure to keep up with what the workshop is putting out and what more is needed in the days ahead. I'm not sure today's announced moves are going to inspire a lot of confidence either.

Elf Holly: Why? What's happening?

Elf Crash: They have run out of physical room to put reinforcements for elves in Santa's workshop so they are adding some improvised things to make things move along even faster. They have added a level to conveyance that's never been done before.

Elf Holly: Conveyance? What does that mean, Crash?

Elf Crash: It's movement of stuff. Most of the time things move about the workshop and from the workshop to wrapping by way of conveyor belts. And they are still using those too, but they can only go so fast. So they are adding aerial conveyance to the mix and moving things in the air.

Elf Holly: How, by drone?

Elf Crash: No, they are bringing in the tooth fairies for this.

Elf Holly: Oh my, they haven't done that for like 20 years!

Elf Crash: Yes, I was in the Wrapping Department when they tried that and it was a mess because all those wings flapping about didn't mix well with adhesive tape. But this is different. I think it's brilliant and I think it will help a great deal.

Elf Holly: Ok, Crash. I hope you're right. From the North Pole, where tooth fairies have been our friends for a long time and have long helped us out in a pinch, I'm Elf Holly Berry reporting for SantaUpdate.com on the Kringle Radio Network.
