

Pictures of Santa's Sleigh

Elf Frank Myrrh: Hello again from the North Pole News desk, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh of North Pole Radio News. Santa's sleigh has been in the news a lot so far this year and we are getting questions from all over, including our listeners here on North Pole Radio News. A believer by the name of Todd, from Florida, in the United States asks why we can't see pictures of Santa's new sleigh. Here to answer that question is International Director of Santa Trackers, Elf Crash Murphy. Crash, why can't we post a picture of the sleigh?

Elf Crash: Well, I could, Frank, but then I'd lose my job as an elf, Santa would be really upset with me, and I wouldn't be able to hang my stocking this year.

Elf Frank: This is a really serious rule, Crash. We all who work at the North Pole have to sign an NDA and this is at the top of that list. You're right, we could get in big trouble.

Elf Crash: I don't expect anyone out there to know what an NDA is, Frank, but I think everyone can understand why Santa just can't have his primary mode of transportation on Christmas out there for anyone to just know what it looks like. Now, I would say that when Santa DOES fly on Christmas Eve, we interview them here on Kringle Radio and we get sent lots of photos and videos from people that see Santa either in the skies or in their yards or on their roofs. But I, as an elf, cannot go over to the Sleigh Barn and take a picture of it and just share it with the world online.

Elf Frank: Is it about more than safety, Crash?

Elf Crash: Well of course it is, Frank. That's some of the best technology in the world and we can't have people copying it and running around in their own flying sleighs. Can you imagine the chaos that would become, Frank? Santa has some secrets and flying high speed sleighs are just the tip of the proverbial iceberg, Frank. I know our job is to tell the world about Santa and Christmas but there's just some things we gotta keep quiet about, Frank. That's just the way it is. Loose lips sink ships, ya know.

Elf Frank: Ok, Crash. I guess we get the point. We won't be seeing any official photos of Santa's sleigh any time soon. From the North Pole news room, where we don't photograph much of anything because we're scared of not getting anything in our Christmas Stocking, I'm Elf Frank Myrrh reporting for SantaUpdate.com the Kringle Radio Network.
